Full sun, temperatures in the 90s F, heat reflected from a gravel surface, and humidity most certainly provide challenging conditions for plants in our container trials during the summer. But new varieties of Calibrachoa (million bells) from the Superbells® series by Proven Winners have been up to the challenge. After providing us with a colorful display this past spring, these five varieties of million bells have returned to full bloom once again in the middle of the summer! These new Calibrachoa hybrids will be available as plants in garden centers in 2019, but here is an early peek from this year's trials.
